gained from experience, and the knowledge of a trust company's advantages prompted this:

THE DEATH of James Campbell, considered St. Louis' lead. ing financier, last month was totally unexpected. Mr. Campbell was taken suddenly ill with a carbuncle and blood poisoning set in. He died at his summer home, Indian Field, Greenwich, Conn. He was the head of the United Railways of St. Louis, Union Electric Light & Power Company and the great $30,000,000 North American Company. The latter is interested in the utilities mentioned, the Milwaukee electric light and railways and the Detroit Edison Company. It also owns the West Kentucky Coal Company. Mr. Campbell's character was picturesque. He was a messenger for Gen. John C. Fremont in the early days, afterwards a broker who made a fortune in defaulted "railroad aid" and other bonds. He was alert, shrewd and far-sighted. He readed a profit of $4,500,000 in the Utah Securities Corporation deal of a few years ago, in which gigantic New York utility interests were actively concerned. His fortune it is believed, will approximate $25,000,000 or more. The entire estate goes to St. Louis university within twenty-one years or less following the deaths of his widow, and his only living child, Miss Lois Ann Campbell, which will insure the greatest hospital and medical school in the world. The Mercantile Trust Company, of St. Louis, of which Mr. Campbell was a director, was named executor and trustee with full and absolute, powers throughout the trust period.
